What the data says

Traditional outlets no longer hold a monopoly on influence or attention. Buyers discover suppliers through search, answer engines, niche publishers and peer communities long before the first sales conversation.

78%

of B2B marketing leaders say non-traditional media channels will play a significant role in their strategy over the next year.

87%

say they are confident in their team's ability to adapt to emerging non-traditional media opportunities.

~50%

report advanced measurement capability. Influence is being created in places most reporting still cannot see.

What to change first

01

Map where research actually starts

Audit the last twenty inbound conversations and trace the first touch. Most teams find it was never their own site.

02

Write for retrieval, not ranking

Answer engines quote passages, not pages. Structure content around the questions buyers ask in their own words.

03

Measure influence you don't own

Track branded search, direct traffic and self-reported attribution alongside channel metrics. Imperfect signals beat blind spots.
